

This exhibition was created for visitors to question preconceived notions about race, particularly on the topic of love, through the medium of stop motion animation short films. In today's society, interracial marriage and relationships are common yet sometimes not supported or understood. This exhibition was created to address this stigma and to question why these types of relationships still cause controversy even today in an advancing society. Oftentimes, race is a topic that is not discussed. It is time to take a stand and to question these preconceived notions. Love is love, and love does not and should not discriminate.

<http://cyberhouse.arted.psu.edu/322/exhibition.html>

Follow URL to visit the exhibition or attend in person at:

207 Arts Cottage
The Pennsylvania State University
University Park, PA 16802

April 30, 2015

6:00-8:00 p.m. EST